

Link to lesson: Smile

"Come on then, come in, sit down."

.....

"No, stop smiling, we're going to do something different today. It's called a reality check. I want you to repeat after me: university tuition fees."

.....

"The banking crisis means I'll never afford a home."

.....

"Have you filled out your tax return? Why not?"

.....

"Is that a koala or an elephant? Get rid of it."

.....

"Climate change."

.....

"Congestion charge."

.....

"There isn't a pet heaven."

.....

"And another thing, you don't get pocket money. You have to work hard every day. Look will you just stop smiling, please? "

.....

"Right, fine. I've got all day."

.....

"Alright. Did you know that 60% of marriages end in divorce? Yeah? Two people meet, get on really well, and then they start growing apart, further and further apart until one of them leaves you, takes half your stuff, your house, maybe your kids."

.....

"Oh God! You are just not going to stop smiling, are you? OK, let's get on with it. Alright, give me your best shot."

.....

"Oh, I suppose I can always get a new house. Hey, is your Mum single? Alright, keep me posted."

.....